The European Commission Representative in Barcelona and the Fundació Mies van der Rohe organize the debate ?European Identity and European Architecture?, within the framework of the project ?New Narratives for Europe? [2]. The event will take place on November 28th at Mies van der Rohe Pavilion.

Leading European architects will discuss the ideas and values which define European Architecture and consider what these can tell us about the future of the European Union. For example, what are the distinguishing features of European architecture, and what do they tell us about the ideas, interests, needs and values of European society?

The architects participating in this event will be: Petra Ceferin, from Ljubljana; Peter Cachola Schmal, from Frankfurt; Caroline Bos, from Amsterdam; and Margarita Jover, from Barcelona. Journalist Llàtzer Moix [3] will act as moderator.
